

Foreword: Issue No. 1 (2025)

Beginning with Issue No. 1 of 2025, the Journal of Legal Studies officially adopts its new title -the Vietnam Journal of Legal Studies - under License No. 91/GP-BTTTT dated 28 February 2025, issued by the Ministry of Information and Communications. This renaming marks not merely a formal change but a significant scholarly milestone, embodying a renewed academic vision and a stronger institutional commitment to advancing legal research that both reflects Vietnam's evolving legal landscape and engages critically with global jurisprudential discourse.

The Vietnam Journal of Legal Studies reaffirms its dedication to academic excellence, rigorous peer review, and intellectual integrity. By situating Vietnamese legal scholarship within an international framework, the Journal seeks to foster inclusive, interdisciplinary, and comparative approaches that deepen theoretical insight and inform legal practice.

The Editorial Board extends its profound appreciation to Associate Professor Susan M. Altmeyer, Associate Professor Patrick H. Gaughan of the University of Akron School of Law, and their Juris Doctor students, whose editorial precision, scholarly insight, and unwavering dedication were instrumental in preparing this inaugural issue under our new title. Their contributions exemplify the spirit of cross-border academic collaboration that the Vietnam Journal of Legal Studies aspires to promote.

We invite our readers and contributors to join us in shaping the Vietnam Journal of Legal Studies into a dynamic and influential forum for legal inquiry - one that embodies both national depth and international engagement.
